

All the Time / Roni Daloomi

(lyrics: R.Daloomi)

*All the time I aim high
With the fear of falling
All the time I want to just be satisfied
And to eat already
All the time the desire to help
The fear harm
All the time the desire to free
The fear and to slide*

*All the time the desire to touch
The fear and to invade
All the time the desire to put borders
The fear to abandon
All the time between "what if"
And "what really is"
All the time to let myself say everything
And to regret*

*Enough, because it's too much for me
To catch everything so strong
And to fall from my feet
Enough, too much for me
These aren't tears
Something just got in my eyes*

*All the time the desire to deepen
The fear to drown
The desire to listen to everything
And not to hear everything
To let myself be angry
Without breaking the dishes
All the time I love me
If I don't go out of the lines*

*All the time to turn me off
So as not to turn on
All the time to start to go mad
And to stop
All the time to remember
How to stand on my own
All the time to work on myself*

And to be kidding myself

*Enough, because it's too much for me
To catch everything so strong
And to fall from my feet
Enough, too much for me
These aren't tears
Something just got in my eyes*

*Between me and the caution
There's a genuine bond
I want to be okay
And also to be me
I don't know how it's possible to be so careful
To live is really a dirty and complicated business
So it's done, I learned
It's impossible*

*From all this "this-or-that"
Nothing is left of me
I'll give myself "mountains to conquer"
Won't "eat" my heart or head
The head I'll "eat" too*